BENEFITS PLANNING, ASSISTANCE & OUTREACH (BPAO) PROJECT

By: Charlene Hintz and Mary Kennedy

The Ticket to Work and Work Incentives Improvement Act authorized the Social Security Administration (SSA) to establish a community-based work incentives planning and assistance program. The purpose of this program is to provide accurate information related to work incentives to beneficiaries with disabilities. IndependenceFirst is the Benefits Planning, Assistance & Outreach (BPAO) provider for Milwaukee, Waukesha, Washington and Ozaukee counties.

The IndependenceFirst BPAO Project is available to individuals receiving Social Security Disability Insurance (SSDI) and/or Supplemental Security Income (SSI) benefits who are interested in becoming employed. The primary focus is to assist individuals with disabilities with making informed choices about working.

Services provided through the IndependenceFirst BPAO Project include:

Information and Referral – Information on Federal and State benefit programs.

Problem Solving and Advocacy – Assistance with Federal and State benefit and work incentive problems.

Benefits Analysis and Advisement – An assessment of a beneficiary's situation and the impact of work on Federal and State benefits.

Benefits Support Planning – Assistance with developing a long-term plan incorporating the beneficiary's work goal and available work incentives.

Benefits Management – Assistance with managing benefits when a beneficiary experiences changes that affect benefits.

For more information about the IndependenceFirst BPAO Project please contact our Benefits Specialists Charlene Hintz (x8336) or Mary Kennedy (x8335) at 414-291-7520 voice/TTY.

EARNED INCOME CREDIT

May Be Money in Your Pocket!

It is tax time again. Don't forget to file!

Maybe you think you don't need to file because you didn't make enough money. But, you may miss out on the Earned Income Credit (EIC). Disabilities often prevent people from working as much as they would like. An individual with a disability may not owe tax, but should file to get EIC if they qualify.

Individuals earning less than $11,490 in 2004 may be entitled to EIC. What this means is that if an individual with a disability lives alone or in supported living and had earned income (wages, but not including Social Security benefits or SSI) of less than $11,490, that person may be eligible for a refund of up to $390. This is true even if no income tax is withheld on Form W-2, the wage statement from the employer.

Adults between ages 25 and 64 who are not claimed as dependents or for EIC purposes on another return can file their own return, often a Form 1040EZ, and receive a check of up to $390 that does not count as an asset or income for SSI purposes. If the individual is married the income limit for a couple without children in their home is $12,490.

In addition, if the person was eligible in prior years and did not file returns to claim the EIC, they can still file for 2001, 2002, and 2003, as well as 2004. The 2001 return needs to be filed before April 15, 2005. There is no penalty for filing late if the government owes you money, but usually the return claiming the refund needs to be filed within three years of the original due date. Prior year returns can be ordered by calling 1-800-TAX-FORM.

If you have a disabled child living in your home, your family may qualify for EIC if you, as the parent, work. If you are a parent whose child with a disability lives with you and your household income is less than $30,338 ($31,338 if married filing jointly), you may be eligible for EIC of up to $2,604. If you also have other children living with you and your 2004 income is less than $34,458 ($35,458 if married), you may be eligible for EIC up to $4,300. Disabled children can qualify you for EIC regardless of age. Other children must be under 19 or under 24 and a fulltime student.

More information about the EIC rules is available in Publication 596, Earned Income Credit. It contains eligibility criteria and instructions for claiming the tax credit. Copies of the publication are available in English and Spanish and can be found on the IRS Web site at www.irs.gov or by calling 1-800-TAXFORM (1-800-829-3676).
